Summary of Text 26: "The Days of Noah, Lot and Jesus".

This text examines the biblical theme of moral and spiritual decline through the "days of Noah" and the "days of Lot", during which transgressive sins and the rejection of God's Spirit led to severe divine judgments, such as the Flood and the destruction of Sodom.

The text explains that this decline arises when humanity chooses the purely earthly and biological "flesh" instead of living through God's resurrection power and the Holy Spirit.

According to the Gospels and the apostolic letters, this pattern of spiritual numbness, moral decay and widespread apostasy is repeated in the lead-up to the end times and the return of the Son of Man. Although conscious and deliberate apostasy is described as a grave sin against the Holy Spirit that leads to "eternal death", the text concludes that only an abundance of divine mercy and persevering prayer can still bring salvation and repentance.
